

Abortion Speak Out Kit

There is a hostile climate of opinion surrounding abortion. Women seeking abortion care must walk through crowds of protestors; abortion providers fear for their safety; states are passing laws to make women seeking abortions go through waiting periods, obtain parental or judicial permissions, or view photos of aborted fetuses; politicians vote against women's reproductive rights and the author of the last U.S. Supreme Court decision on abortion, Justice Anthony Kennedy, publicly shamed women who have later abortions in Gonzales v. Carhart.

Women speaking out privately to family and friends and publically will create a more favorable climate of opinion.

This kit is intended to be a guide for organizations or individuals to develop an Abortion Speak Out. Please use as much or as little information as necessary. And if you or your organization(s) have any suggestions to further develop this kit, please let us know!

Thank you,

HOW TO PLAN A SPEAKOUT: Topics to discuss prior to filling out “How To Plan A Speak Out” form.

1. GOALS: To throw off the shroud of secrecy and share abortion stories.

2. TYPE OF EVENT

CLASSIC SPEAKOUT: A large public event, either with celebrities or prominent speakers who “come out”. In this case, it’s good to have press and several speakers with different types of abortion experiences (illegal, parental consent, deformed fetus, RU486, etc.) This can be a fund-raiser for a local provider, or a recruiting for escorts for a provider who’s being harassed, or it can be to kick off a campaign 1)to raise money to help women to get abortions, 2)support or oppose upcoming legislation (Best not to make this part of a election campaign)

INVITATION ONLY: Usually small, composed of members of your chapter and friends. If small, it can be a discussion group, discussing how to tell: a partner, family, co-worker(s), to recruit a committee to plan a larger event, or to plan a larger action.

Or, this may be a larger event which has not been publicized in the wider community instead the event is publicized through word of mouth.

Invitations: Women only? Although women’s significant others are supportive, they don’t usually choose to attend women’s meetings to talk about having had an abortion. If one or two do choose to attend, their presence isn’t disruptive, in and of itself. If several do, you may suspect you’ve been infiltrated. Unless they are there with a woman, you can ask them to leave.

Staffing:

- Greeters and Minglers: If you plan to have an informal social time before the program, you may want to have a few people designated as “Greeters”. These individuals greet people as they come through the door and guide them over to the sign-in desk. Then, after they’ve signed-up, the greeter introduces herself to the guest, gets their name and then takes them over to introduce them to a “mingler”. The minglers are usually your committee members or officers.
- Security: There is a possibility that if it is a large, publicized event, anti-abortionists may choose to protest out in front. It is unlikely, however they they may infiltrate and try to break up the meeting. You need to make a decision in advance whether to allow them to be part of the audience if you recognize them. If you decide to exclude them, you can ask them to leave.

Prior to the program you need to have made a plan with your local law enforcement as to how to maintain order in your meeting, if necessary. Take action at the first sign of any non-supportive action.

Anti-abortion activists very rarely direct their disruptive attacks against pro-choice events, however, it is best to be prepared. If they see that you have a number of persons as designated "Security" who are stationed at the strategic places, they will probably either leave or sit quietly.

Having a sign-in table with greeters and minglers is an effective way to get to know the guests. The staff can alert anyone they're suspicious of.
